

An Inconspicuous Politician.

Mr. Lincoln by this time begins to realize that there is such a thing as cunning overshooting the mark. To make favor with the radicals the ultimatum was sent to the southern agents in Canada, that there could be no peace with slavery. The republican party is disgusted that Mr. Lincoln should have exposed the cloven hoof of abolitionism so soon. They wanted to go before the people next November with the old cry of Union. They have styled themselves a Union party. They find it safer to denounce Democrats as rebel sympathizers than it is to defend their own political views. Now, just at this juncture, their man Lincoln suddenly throws off the mask and openly and boldly proclaims that this is not a war for the Union, but is a war for the enfranchisement of negroes; that no propositions for peace will be entertained, unless slavery is abolished in the South. Such an avowal is very plain and distinct. The people now understand what sort of war the Administration proposes to wage, and for what objects it is to be prosecuted. They have the satisfaction of knowing that the Administration makes the salvation of the Union subordinate to the freedom of the negroes; and asks their votes to sustain such a policy. Mr. Lincoln's party is chagrined about the whole matter. They will have to put their candidate in leading strings.

We would venture anything that Secretary Seward never saw Mr. Lincoln's "To whom it may concern" proclamation, before it was sent. He would have been far too astute for such a piece of foolishness. But the deed is done, and the party must father it. Mr. Lincoln's position is just this: that if the rebels were to lay down their arms and ask to be permitted to remain in the Union with their constitutional privileges, the request could not be granted unless they consented to abolish the South. They must be Lincolnized.

Lincoln the Great Cause of Disaffection.

If the Chicago Convention relies for success upon the mere disaffection with Mr. Lincoln's rule, which is assumed to exist, it will be disappointed. The love of the Union, and the resolve to put down hostility to it by force of arms, is stronger than any disaffection. —Chicago Free Press.

This is as if you should refuse to change your physician who has reduced you to death's door by blood-letting, unless his successor will promise to cure you by the mere use of the lancet. The fact that, after a long trial, you have grown constantly weaker, is reason enough for dismissing the quack. The lancet may be valuable in skilled hands, but is not the sole resource of the medical art. Dr. Lincoln is more likely to kill the patient than the disease; it concerns the health of the body politic to get rid of him before life has entirely ebbed out at its bleeding veins. The idea that the people will oust Mr. Lincoln merely because they are dissatisfied with him, is stuff. It was disaffection that overthrew John Adams and elected Jefferson; that overthrew the younger Adams and elected Jackson; that overthrew Van Buren and elected Harrison. But the causes of disaffection, in each of these cases, were bagatelles in comparison with what the country suffers from Lincoln.

THE HUMAN EYE.—The language of the eye is very hard to counterfeit. You can read in the eyes of your companion, while you talk, whether your argument hits him, though his tongue will not confess it. There is a look by which a man shows that he is going to say a good thing, and a look when he has said it. Vain and forgotten are all the fine offices of hospitality, if there be no holiday in the eye. How many future invitations are avowed by the eye, though dissimulated by the lips! A man comes away from a company; he has heard no important remark; but if in sympathy with the society, he is cognizant of such a stream of life as has been flowing in him through the eyes. There are eyes which give no more admission into them than blackberries; others are liquid and deep wells that men might fall into; and others are oppressive and devouring, and take too much notice. There are asking eyes, and asserting eyes, and provoking eyes, and eyes full of faith—some of good and some of sinister omen. —Emerson.

WORTH TRYING.—In times of high prices of flour, the following recipe for making cheap bread, which we find in Hall's Journal of Health, may be of service to some of our readers: "To two quarts of corn meal, add one pint of bread sponge, water sufficient to wet the whole; add one half pint of flour and a teaspoonful of salt. Let it rise, then knead well, unsparingly for the second time. It costs just one half as much as bread from the finest family flour, is lighter on the stomach, and imparts more health, vigor and strength to the body, brain and bone. Three pounds of such bread (at five cents a pound for the meal) affords as much nutriment as nine pounds of good roast beef (cost at twenty-five cents, $2.25) according to standard physiological facts."

THE NEWBURYPORT HERALD, a leading New England administration organ, needs attention. It ventures to say: "The Germans and Danes have agreed on an armistice for nine months. We wish Grant and Lee, or Lincoln and Davis would agree on so sensible a plan for this country." And the following would be a genuine outburst of "disloyalty" were it to appear in a Democratic journal:—"Homer Greeley thinks the President's letter, 'To whom it may concern,' was not the mistake of the President originally, but came from the bad advice of Secretary Stanton. If it came from the War Department there is one thing we may say of it—that it was a bombshell in the Republican camp, more destructive than any shell that that department has caused to be thrown at the rebels."

THE TORONTO GLOBE, one of the most influential papers published in Canada, has for a motto, "The subject who is truly loyal to the Chief Magistrate, will neither advise nor submit to arbitrary measures." If such a motto were to be adopted by paper in King Ab's jurisdiction it would quickly be suppressed.
